THE JOY WALTZ IN MERRY WIDOW

If one is to believe all the glowing craise bestowed on "The Merry Widw" which will be presented at Jackson's on next Tuesday evening, Sept. 7, by the people who have heard this notable Viennese operatta, the long-lost dance that once charmed the classic ancients has come to earth again on a breeze of delicious music. In "The Merry Widow" with its tumult of attractive color and spirit, Composer Lehar is credited with Composer Lehar is credited with bringing the soul of elegant light music back to its own, out of the mire of rag-time and three note jingles have swamped opera comique in musical comedy for the past ten

Thanks to Mr. Henry W. Savage, local music lovers are soon to have the great pleasure of judging for themselves of the merits of Franz Lebar's exquisite work of art. The wonderful opera will have a delightful interpretation by the same cast as prevailed last year which is a typical Savage company of lyric artists and splendid orchestra perfectly schooled in the lovely measures provided by the composer who has suddenly grown into a great celebrity denly grown into a great celebrity through this one symmetrical operetta. Number after number in the score presents the livelest enchant-ment to the imagination and leaves memory a bouquet of original and se-ductive melodies to enjoy indefinitely. Even a slight acquaintance with the music shows it to be as spirited as a Mozart score. It rings with valse and sarabande, with the czardas and bizarre petites popinettes and can-can. It absolutely glows with lovely songs and brilliant dance music and is so beautifully written, has such splendid fundamental robothm and unction of fundamental rhythm and unction of so much intellectuality within its feathery waves and winds that Waldteufel and Von Weber, Offenback and Von Suppe seem bowing before a youthful competitor likely to dispute laurels for the very kind of music each one of these idols has held unchallenged until "The Merry Widow" created the lyrical sensation of this Seat sale is now on.

Reform Will Come He Says When Majority of Women Rise up and

CURE FOR EXISTING ILLS

Stratford, Sept. 3.-From thirty to forty gentlemen of the Men's club, with their lady friends, sat down to a shore dinner last evening, at Lehmann's shore house, Bridgeport, and after partaking of the menu, listened to various addresses · Dea, Baldwin, President of the club, presided and asked Rev. Dr. Packard to speak to the sentiment: "The Sky Pilot." He spoke of the interest there is among the passengers of an ocean liner when the pilot is discovered some 360 miles out from the Atlantic coast, and reout from the Atlantic coast, and remarked that he is a very important individual. We really need sky pilots and they will be of more importance than those of the sea. Many people think they can get into heaven without sky pilots. The present times give independence of thought. There must be compatible to the present times give independence of thought. be something back of the preachers words. The weakness of a profession is due to itself. If we cannot so prech as to interest people the fault is our own. But we are not going out of business—there will be a place for the church and the sky pilot.

Rev. Arthur Sheriey was called upon to reply to the toast: "Joys of the Pedestrian"—since he is fond of walking. He remarked that while lucky people own automobiles, yachts and flying machines, some of us have to go on foot if we get there at all. He said all great men have been walkers, and mentioned Aristotle who walked and mentioned Aristotle who walked upon and down while teaching his pupils, and President Taft. He alluded to the fact that when Alex. H. Stevens entered the House of Representatives he had to be wheeled in a chair, and bundled up from the air. That was the exception which proves the rule. He added that the battle against the great white plague will be won largely by living in the open, and he asked—What places are we going he asked-What places are we going he asked—What places are we going to have in Stratford for walking? He would have a walk preserved, as a park, along the river shore, from John Bond's to the light house.

Hon, Stiles Judson was next called upon. He started in by saying the fact had been observed by all that by reason of modern conditions there has been substracted from the pulpil some of its old time autocratic authority.

May it not be by the silent conver-Many it not be by the silent conversions made by the lawyers? he asked. He then told a story about a lawyer, named Lauterbach, who was young, and having an important case on hand, engaged Rufus Choate to assist him. At the conclusion of the case he made out a bill for $500 which he thought was enough. He took it to Choate who added another cypher. Lauter-bach gazed in amazement, and finally said: "Mr. Choate almost thou per-suadest me to be a Christian." After said: Mr. Choate almost thou per-syndest me to be a Christian." After dinner speaking, said Mr. Judson, was not unknown to the ancients. He re-called that when Daniel descended in-to the lion's den, and faced the concentrated attention of the beasts, showing their ugly teeth, he remark-ed: "Well, thank Heaven, at least there will be no after dinner speeches here!" He continued by saying that he did not now, at his time of life, possess the modest quality of brevity, which Domosthenese recommended to a pupil, who asked what is the most important regulsite for oratory. He re-called his first case before a grim judge, when he was able only to say— "My unfortunate client." After repeating this phrase two or three times, the judge leaned over and said: "Pro-ceed young man, the court is entirely with you in your argument." Smartness, he said, is not to be obtained by browbeating a witness in the box. He was once cross examining a bright little old lady. "Mrs. Brown, is your kinsman, John Jones dead?" "I think," the lady proceeded to answer. "Never mind what you think," said the law-yer "fell us what you know." "When GREAT LIMERICK CONTEST

Unique Offer to Give Away a Piano

For Clever Line to Limerick

The old adage, "You can't get something for nothing," loses a lot of its prestige in the Great Limerick Contest now being conducted by the A. M. Vack Piano House.

Some years ago the London Times to increase its circulation, started a Limerick Contest, and almost immediately the whole city went wild tryactivity. Strong-minded women were once caricatured throughout Christendom—such is not now the fact. Mr. Judson told of an incident in his recent journey to England. He had applied to the American embassy for a ticket to the house the fact. Recently several New England had applied to the American embassy obbs. A peared for a ticket to the houses of parliament. Think of the American Congress bolting itself in American Congress bolting itself in because of a visit from women! Why, they would be welcomed with open arms. (Laughter.) Figuratively speaking, I should say! Woman has been obliged to fight for all the rights she has. He spoke of the mockery and hypocrisy of the wedding ceremony, during which the man says.—"With during which the man says—"With this ring I thee endow with all my worldly goods", when at the same inworldly goods", when at the same in-stant the law vests in the husband everything she possesses. The time is coming when we shall have to meet the question of female suffrage, and whenever the majority of women want it they will have it. When that time does come there will be less corrup-tion at the ballot box, and boss rule, which now holds sway in both politi-cal parties, will be done away with. There is a political duty confronting many men of substance which is not discharged. The speaker urged all men to attend the primaries, and said it is not enough to attend a few hurrah meetings of the G. O. P., and take loy in the flight of the American eagle. If

To Educate the Public

Pottsville, Penn., Sept. 3.—After killing his mother, probably a week ago, George F. Simons, 21 years old, shot billingslif dead last night at the home of Violet Hartranft, to whom he had been paying attention for years.

The body of the mother was found in the attic of her home during the afternoon by the father, George F. Simons, Sr. The door was fastened with large screws and the crevices were sealed with parafine. It is believed she was strangled.

After the body was discovered the husband notified the police, and Chief Davies and another officer, with Deputy Coroner Carlin, went to the home of Miss Hartranft to learn the where-abouts of young Simons. Upon see-ing them Simons killed himself. It is believed that the young man quarreled with his mother about his attentions to the girl.
